1. It has been pointed out that language and culture are inseparable. Please support or refute this statement by providing concrete examples (e.g. phonology, syntax, semantics and pragmatics) based on relevant theories and research/studies. (50%)
2. In light of the issue raised in the previous question, in your opinion is teaching English as a lingua franca (ELF) feasible? If so, how do we deal with the cultural knowledge encoded in the language? And whose culture should we teach in an ELF syllabus? Please cite relevant theories/studies and give concrete examples when possible to support your arguments. (50%)
